

Australian Government Information Office

December 2007

Strategem has been successful in winning a contract to provide telecommunications benchmarking advice and guidance to Australian Government Information Office. This follows a highly successful engagement with the management of the “Joint Commonwealth and States telecommunications benchmarking” service.

Commonwealth departments are seeking to ensure they receive “value for money” from their considerable telecommunications expenditure. In this respect the departments will be able to view where they sit in the range of prices and services compared to other departments and to the wider business community.

The diagram below shows a representation of how the service which will be provided.

The service requires Strategem to facilitate a business solution to this telecommunications benchmarking requirement. Strategem were selected due to their considerable experience and expertise in this area and their ability to facilitate solutions/requirements across a number of diverse departments.